MINI-GOLF game review

Self Test

Pressing the self-test switch on the chassis tray will cause the program to enter a sequenced self-test mode. First the screen RAM is tested by outputting a pattern to the monitor and checking it. This part of the test takes about 3 seconds and results in status screen that indicates whether the screen RAM is good and also indicates the status of the ROM checksums. Pressing start 1 will then go to the switch input test where the state of all the controls and option switches is presented to the user. Pressing start 1 again will take the user to the game score statistics screen where a cumulative graph of scores and other information is presented to the viewer. Next start 1 again will take the user to a similar game time statistics screen. On either this screen or the prior one, the user may choose to reset the cumulative statistics and high scores by pressing the start 2. Pressing start 1 yet again returns the user to the switch input screen. To exit self-test mode, the self-test switch must be returned to its original position on the game chassis.

Attract Mode

- 1. When game is first powered on or when self-test mode is exited, a blank screen with the message loading appears for approximately 30 seconds. (This is to allow the sound circuitry to be initialized).
- Title screen will appear (approx. 8 seconds).
- 3. High score screen will appear (approx. 8 seconds).
- 4. Demonstation screen will appear (approx. 8 seconds).
- 5. Credits screen will appear (approx. 10 seconds).
- 6. Missing kids screen will appear (approx. 8 seconds).
- 7. Cycle repeats from Step 2.

Game Description

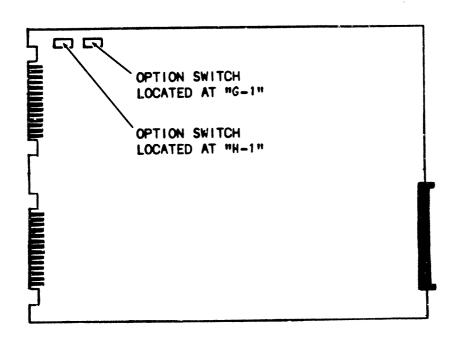

Mini Golf is a 1 to 4 player top-down miniature golf game. The game contains 18 holes and also contains a switch-selectable add-a-coin option to consist of a trackball by which the player "hits" the golf ball with a given force and direction and a tee select switch which allows the player to select his tee-off position on the mat on his first shot for each hole.

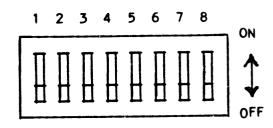

Each player is given 3 holes to start with and may earn additional holes by shooting below par on each hole as he proceeds. The number of extra holes still available to the player is indicated in the upper right hand corner of the screen. The number of holes to be earned on any given shot is represented by little flags depicted in the score box under bonus. The bonus entry also gives the score to be earned on the same shot should the player sink the ball. Total score for each player is given in the score box as well as total strokes compared to total par. The player who is currently up also has his score shown in the upper left hand corner. When a player runs out of holes the add-a-coin option, if enabled, will allow the player 10 seconds to put more credit into the machine and press start to continue with the game. If a player chooses to do so, 3 additional holes are given to the player. Note that this option is automatically disabled on the last 4 holes of the game since a player must be of a skill level to complete the game himself. Note also that this option is allowed once only for each player during a game.
